

FOHI Annual Report

January 1-December 31, 2012

The mission of the Friends of Hog Island is to preserve the legacy and support the conservation and nature programs and activities of the Audubon Camp at Hog Island.

Promises made; promises kept - FOHI does it again.

In 2012, volunteers, generosity, and, A Sense of Wonder stand out. Each tied into our goals for 2012 and reinforced the deep commitment of FOHIs.

Volunteers When Steve Kress announced that the camp would go from 6 sessions in 2011 to 10 in 2012, we gulped. How would we manage to find volunteers for all those sessions plus the FOHI work weeks. Not only did we find them, but they came and donated over 8,000 hours – almost double that in 2011. They gave their heart and soul to make every camper's experience a good one and to make the camp shine and hum flawlessly. They even restored the historic Writer's Cabin. A new opportunity was remotely operating the Osprey cam.

Generosity was evident throughout the year with the ongoing commitment of donors and the number of new donors, but memorable were the times when spontaneous giving arose for the endowment – during the Road Scholar session a camper offered $1,000 if others would match it. At the New York and Pennsylvania Audubon board retreat another camper offered $2,000 if others would match it – in all FOHI donated $10,300 toward the endowment. Another spontaneous match was $500 toward a much-needed, new walk-in fridge that FOHI plans to fund and build in 2013.

Generosity has many forms: donors gave a new projection screen for the Fish House, a second specimen case for the Queen Mary, more canvas bags and note cards for sale, garden plants, more Adirondack chairs, another dock cart, prints of a water color of Hog Island, and more.

Post-Performance Smiles

post-performance
gathering of *A Sense of

in Damariscotta. Kaiulani Lee performed her one-woman “A Sense of Wonder.” About 15 minutes before the performance, the theater was only half full - it holds 230. But then, as happens in Maine, at the last moment, the queue for tickets mushroomed. A sold-out audience brought smiles that would not disappear. Ms. Lee joined board members Steve Kress and Scott Weidensaul and Tim Glidden (Maine Coast Heritage Trust) for a long Q & A with the audience to discuss environmental issues. She then joined guests at a post-performance event at the Damariscotta River Grill. All was underwritten by two donors.

The performance did much to raise awareness in the community about Rachel Carson, Hog Island, and FOHI, beside raising funds.

$500,000. With a number of planned gifts, we are close to achieving that goal.

Special Thanks go to volunteers Mary Bennett, who volunteered for every session, and to Joe Beaudette, who stayed for five weeks to help Eric Snyder with building maintenance and more (see top photo p. 2). Enough cannot be said about the volunteers, their patience enthusiasm, energy, and good humor. They make it happen.

To the new and continuing donors, we thank you. Team FOHI gets stronger each year because of our volunteers and donors.

Financially, we ended 2012 ahead of 2011. Not only did we fulfill our annual commitment of $50,000 to the camp but also provided another $16,000 for other needs, including the endowment. Donors took advantage of our ability to accept stocks and securities. Financials are on page 8.

During the summer, we worked closely with National Audubon raising funds for the Hog Island Endowment and the matching funds for the anonymous

Volunteers Rock

A cornerstone of FOHI's promise to Hog Island is to provide volunteers.

To anyone who runs a nonprofit, volunteers are the lifeblood of the organization. They not only provide the much-needed skills and moral support, they also provide a passion and commitment that runs deep and spills over to others. They are the ambassadors of the organization.

In this day and age, they give the most valuable and finite thing they have - time. They care. When they can't volunteer, they tell others about their experience and why they do it. They continue to care about the well-being and future of the organization.

A volunteer builds skills, teaches others, makes friends, networks, learns new disciplines, learns team-building, and enjoys seeing the fruits of their contribution.

At Hog Island, the FOHI volunteers give unceasingly. Amid stunning scenery, working with the Audubon instructors and staff, they thrive on the dedication and passion of the whole team to make every camper have the best experience that they can. Smiles are the order of the day, whether it be shucking peas, sweeping out common areas, painting, or any of the myriad tasks involved in running a camp. At Hog Island, the camper is number one, we want them to smile all day, too.

FOHI manages to keep its costs low because it is an all-volunteer organization. Some of the off-island volunteer opportunities include the history project - digitally archiving the 76-year historical documents and photos - as well as event planning, web management, communications, etc

Come and rock with us. We are donors, campers, board members, staff, neighbors, alumni, and passersby. We care. We rock!

Did you know that FOHI volunteers. . .

- ★ Get to go on trips
- ★ Eat scrumptious meals including lobster
- ★ Walk shoreline trails
- ★ Return year after year to be with friends.
